Contipark takes over two underground car parks in Freudenstadt

From 1 February, Germany's largest provider will operate parking facilities at the Kurhaus and the upper market square

Freudenstadt is famous for having the largest market square in Germany. Not only is it a tourist magnet, but also the town centre, which was rebuilt after the Second World War with traditional gabled houses - the "wonder of Freudenstadt". 400,000 overnight stays in 2022 alone speak for the popularity of Freudenstadt. Visitors to the sights will now find a central place to park in the 417 spaces in the "Oberer Marktplatz" underground car park. "Our customers will also find clean, safe and inexpensive parking facilities in our new car park - just like everywhere else in our buildings," says Andreas Knops, member of the Contipark Management Board and Head of Property Management. Contipark is taking over the car park facilities from the "City of Freudenstadt" after winning a tender.

Contipark increases the number of e-charging points at Oberer Marktplatz sixfold

There are currently only two e-charging points in the underground car park. "That's clearly not enough. If we really want to accelerate the mobility transition, then we need to invest in charging infrastructure. That's why we are planning to install ten additional charging points in the near future," says Andreas Knops.

With the change of operator, Contipark is also bringing its tried-and-tested P Card to the large district town in the Black Forest. This means a tried and tested system of favourable prices. The P Card offers regular customers throughout Germany a modern and uncomplicated way of parking. For example, it enables ticketless entry and exit as well as cashless payment. With the P Card, the daily price is often just 5 euros.

Affordable parking at the Kurhaus

In addition to the underground car park on Oberer Marktplatz, Contipark will take over the underground car park at the Kurhaus, which is also being put out to tender, on 1 February 2024. 223 parking spaces on three levels will be available here for visitors to events at the Kurhaus and the adjacent congress centre.
